A little bit of History

Stephen Lawn was a farmer, blacksmith and wheelwright in the North Pine/Lawnton area during the late 19th century. Lawn was a blacksmith by trade, he put up a small smithy so that he could supplement his income from farming by obtaining work from other settlers. The extra traffic brought about by the Gympie goldrush provided sufficient business to enable him to concentrate on blacksmithing full-time. In 1873, he bought better land south of the River and moved his business to the new site located where the Lawnton Tavern currently stands.
